

Christian Education Awareness Network (CEANet)

Do you think Jesus cares about the education your children receive? Are your children learning a worldview with which you do not agree? What does the Bible communicate concerning the responsibility of teaching young Christian children? To find the answers to these questions and more, you may want to consider joining the Christian Education Awareness Network (CEANet).

What is CEANet?

The Christian Education Awareness Network (CEANet) is a national/international E-mail list, which provides members with articles, essays, and other, related sources which demonstrate a need to restore education as a parental/Church ministry. CEANet also examines the significance of the origins debate with regard to the impact of worldviews which stem from humanist compared to divine revelation. Here is a short list of some of the areas under examination:

- Creation vs. Evolution
- Education (public, private, and homeschool)
- Separation of School and State
- Globalization Efforts
- Government (international, national, state, and local)
- Other Issues of Interest to Christians

Membership to CEANet is free. CEANet does not solicit, nor does it accept donations. Message frequency varies from zero to three messages per week.

In addition, CEANet has a website full of related essays, references, links, and recommended recourses to help shed light and bring more understanding to this important part of Christian living.
